1. SCOPE

In the quest for regulating tobacco products and reducing the epidemic of tobacco use, the labelling of tobacco and tobacco products has been envisaged to be one of the most effective measures to increase awareness and communicate specific health risks such as death, addiction, cancer, stroke, lung and heart diseases. The effective package messages reduce attractiveness of packaging to smokers or tobacco users, encourages smokers to quit and empower youth to say no to tobacco. Health warnings that include pictures have been largely encouraged as they have been shown to be more effective since they are more likely to be noticed, critical in communicating health risks to larger number of people who cannot read.

The introduction of these warnings is expected to have significant public health impact by decreasing the number of smokers, resulting in lives saved, increased life expectancy and lower medical costs.

In pursuance of Sections 62 to 65 of the Public Health Act 2012, (Act 851), these Guidelines are hereby made to provide prospective importers of tobacco with information on the general requirements for the labelling of tobacco products.
